Chapter 1 by Lex

Sebastian Castellanos stood in front of the massive Asylum and scanned the surroundings for anything suspicious...nothing. He motioned for Joseph Oda to move forward toward the left and for Juli Kidman to move forward to the right. He followed behind Joseph around the large statue in the middle of the walkway and kept going up the stairs. Joseph grabbed the handle to the door and pushed it open, Juli and Sebastian stepped inside with theirs guns drawn, cautiously the three of them made their way past the reception area. Sebastian stood in front of the desk and looked around, Juli looked around behind the desk and in the back room, Joseph stepped into a room on the other side of the entrance.

"Hey Seb, come check this out." Joseph ushered Sebastian towards the small closet-like room he was standing in, it was the security room. There was a guard just near death sitting against the table.

"Juli go call in for an ambulance!" he shouted through the door, Juli rushed out to the squad car they pulled up in and called it in. Sebastian and Joseph stood there going through some of the footage. All he could see was static or empty halls on most of them except one. This one showed

"Joseph!?" he nudged Joseph's shoulder, and felt a slight hand on his. He turned around and was facing the man from the camera...then everything went black.

Sebastian woke up suspended by rope from the ceiling in what appeared to be a slaughter house, a large masked man stood before Sebastian as he barely tried to blink. The man turned around and went back about his business in the room ahead of them, gutting whatever it was on that table. Sebastian looked around for a way out and saw a knife, inside a body hung a few feet from him. He began swinging himself, back and forth, reaching his arm out to the knife with every forward motion. After a few tries Sebastian managed to remove the knife from the body and cut the rope, his body crashed to the floor with a thud, the knife managing it's way inside of Sebastian's leg. He got up quickly and crouched next to the doorway which was open. Once he watched the strange man leave from a door on the other side he quickly scurried over and snatched his keys off the table and quickly went out the way he came. There was a set of stairs next to where the butchers office was, he made his way up the stairs and there was a door at the end of the catwalk. He put the key in the lock and twisted it, he pushed the door open and an alarm sounded.
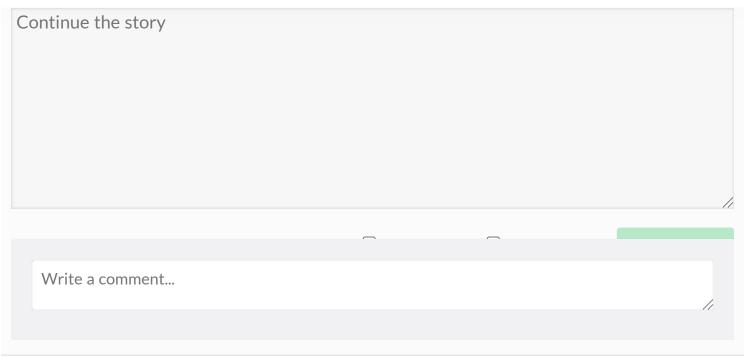

"Uh-oh that's not good." He ran as fast as he could while limping down the hall as the man chased after him with a chainsaw in hand. He kept running as he stumbled over old hospital beds and, desks, random chairs, until he pushed open the next set of doors. He looked around and saw a set of lockers, he quickly stepped inside of one and closed it. The maniac ran into the room waving his chainsaw around, he tossed a bunch of stuff around and pushed over a desk or two then walked right passed the lockers, he continued through the next hall making noise, dragging that chainsaw along the walls, tossing things around looking for Sebastian.

"Where the hell are Joseph and Juli? I hope they're safe..."
